

Dr. Alexander Zink, M.D., M.P.H., Ph.D.

Dr. Alexander Zink, MD, MPH, PhD is a consultant physician and board-certified dermatologist at the Department of Dermatology and Allergy at Technical University of Munich, Germany and senior researcher at the Division of Dermatology and Venereology at Karolinska Institutet, Stockholm, Sweden. He studied medicine in Mainz and Munich (both Germany), London (UK) and Harvard Medical School (USA) with a state scholarship of the German State of Bavaria and obtained his MD degree from the Technical University of Munich. After medical school, he completed his dermatology residency and received his Masters in Public Health (MPH) as well as his Ph.D. in Epidemiology and Public Health from the Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich. Dr. Zink specializes in chronic skin diseases, public health and digital medicine with a focus on prevention and people-centered-healthcare, as well as patient and population-based burden of diseases leveraging innovative solutions such as crowdsourced data, network analysis and wearables.

Dr. Zink has published over 150 articles and is a member of the editorial board of the Journal of the European Academy of Dermatology and Venereology Clinical Practice (JEACP). He is also head of Digital Dermatology within the German Society of Dermatology (DDG).