

Stephanie Eyerich, PhD

Stephanie is a biologist by training and working in the field of dermato-immunology since starting her thesis. She is an expert in unravelling the communication between immune and epithelial cells during chronic skin inflammation. Next to understanding basic principles of cell communication, Stephanie's research focuses on the translation of results to develop new molecular diagnostic tools and potential therapeutic targets.